Designer Reagan Hayes on (and beyond) LA trends.

What could be more stylish than having LA designer Reagan Hayes curate our Style Radar section for the fall? With her vogue eye, her attention to excellent craftsmanship, and her simple good taste, Reagan pinpoints the hippest must-haves in Tinseltown and beyond. You can also visit her brand new showroom on the 9th floor of 200 Lex, Suite 903, 212.658.1922

- FRINGE FOR THE AGES
Chloe Hudson Mini Fringe Shoulder Bag
 "To be honest, I don't know if fringe ever actually goes out of style here in LA. Sure it comes and goes through runway cycles out in the rest of the world, but we have a way of finding places to fit it in for nearly every fall season. This Chloe fringe shoulder bag hits every fashionable nail square on the head!"

- GEOMETRY IN DESIGN
Helix Chandelier
 "I find myself using more and more geometric elements in my design work, like in this vignette from my LA showroom. Somewhere in my hometown of Baton Rouge, my old geometry teacher is nodding his head and doing a slow clap to celebrate that at least one student is actually putting that stuff to use."

- MODERN PORTRAITURE
"Normandie" by Peter Walker, pencil on paper
 "I have really loved seeing the rise of modern portraiture with more edgy or abstract details, and no one shows that better than Los Angeles-based artist Peter Walker. It's the type of talent you come to appreciate when you think, 'Could I do something like that if I just practiced for like a million hours?'
 No. No I couldn't."

- DESIGN WITH NATURAL AND MODERN ELEMENTS
Vine Snake Necklace
 "I'm seeing a beautiful shift away from overly designed, highly tailored, and perfect color coordination to a more free-flowing, loose approach. A great way to pull that off is by fusing natural and modern elements in the same space. This aesthetic resonates in fashion, too: take Biological Jewels' custom pieces, handmade in LA, as an example. This polished bronze snake necklace on an oxidized silver chain proves nature can inform modern design with surprisingly beautiful results."

- FARM TO FORK FOR THE FALL
Rustic Canyon Winebar and Seasonal Kitchen
 "If you're not having regular dining experiences at a quality farm-to-table restaurant, then I would like to inform you that there is something wonderful missing from your life that needs to be addressed right now. Make a reservation tonight. Seriously, My favorite LA spot for fresh farm food is Rustic Canyon in Santa Monica. The menu is always changing, but if you happen upon this Vanilla Budino, you've basically won the culinary lottery."

- STAND OUT IN STYLE
Horsehair Tassel Hat
 "Without fail, every time I step out for lunch from our West Hollywood showroom, I feel immediately out of place upon realizing that I dared betray the LA foodie uniform... I forgot my hat. We like our hats in all shapes and colors out here, but the must-have for fall is wide-brimmed, dark, and felt. This Free People find is a gorgeous limited edition made in America, constructed in a floppy fedora style with a unique horsehair tassel band."
